1. In the beginning of 1955, the government changed the milk delivery system. According to the new system, farmers have to deliver milk in proportion to the amount and type of arable land owned. Only cattle raisers with little arable land profit by the new system, which is very detrimental to farmers with land and no livestock.
2. Discrimination between TKZS and private farmers continues. For example the TKZS in Kostur, Svilengrad Okoliya, had to deliver only 2½ liters of milk per acre, while private farmers from Lisovo had to deliver 8½ liters.
3. In April 1955, [ ] rumors [ ] that grain deliveries will be abolished and that the government will keep 30 percent of the grain taken to state mills by farmers.
4. The farmers in Lisovo complain about high taxes, low payments for tobacco, and excessive meat and milk delivery quotas. In order to reduce some of their quotas, about 30 families from Lisovo gave some of their unproductive land to the state.
